

Dr. Sarah Jane Fishback has over forty years experience in education including fourteen years at Kansas State University. As a military spouse, she was actively engaged in community development, leadership training, and served as a leadership consultant for the various military organizations in the United States and Europe during her husband's command at the company, battalion and brigade levels.

Dr. Fishback graduated from the University of Virginia and has a Master's and Doctorate of Philosophy from the College of Education at Kansas State University. She was graduate student of the year at Kansas State University in 1997 and received the American College Personnel Association Adult Learner award for her doctoral research. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Delta Kappa.

Dr. Fishback's current research interests include adult development and learning, neuroscience, college teaching and motivation to learn. She serves as consultant to the American Association of Counseling Pastors, and Consultant on Faculty Development at Kansas State University's Veterinary School.

She is a co-author of the text Responding to Adult Learners in Higher Education, and has published in the area of neuroscience, women in education and the impact of post traumatic stress on learners. Dr. Fishback teaches the following courses: Characteristics of the Adult Learner, Adult Learning and Motivation, Adult Development, Neuroscience and Learning, Foundations of Adult Education, Significant Literature in Adult Education, Social Foundations of Adult Education, and Women, Education and Work.